What type of CDL is required?

CDL Class A or CDL Class B with airbrake endorsement and able to maintain a DOT medical card plus have a safe driving record. Applicants for IL commercial driving positions must not have a restriction on transmission type.

What is the pay?

Union wages are based on the Teamsters Local and level of experience.

Is overtime available?

Overtime depends on our customers' needs but is generally available during the construction season. Overtime is earned after 8 hours worked in one day and Saturdays. 40 hours are not guaranteed.

Do you offer benefits?

Benefits are provided through the Union Local. Each Union Local sets the specific criteria necessary to qualify for benefits.

Benefits include health and welfare, vacation pay, holiday pay, and employer-paid pension or 401k depending on the local.

What is the schedule like?

The schedule varies and could include weekends and late evenings, but home daily. Start times vary depending on our customer demands.

I have commercial driving experience but not ready-mix experience, is there the opportunity to get trained on ready-mix?

Yes, experience in ready-mix is preferred, but Ready-mix training is provided to the ideal applicant who has a proven safe driving record and embodies Ozinga's values and purpose regardless of ready-mix experience.

How long does training last?

Training duration depends on the trainee, could be one week to three weeks. The trainee is paid during the probationary period (which includes training).
